How well is your board performing?

Every board needs a regular health check and more and more businesses throughout the world are now recognising that evaluating the performance of their board can be of real benefit in determining and improving boardroom practices and procedures.

By undergoing a thorough board performance evaluation, you can provide assurance to stakeholders and potential investors that your organisation is committed to the highest standards of governance and probity. Good corporate governance makes good business sense, so if you want to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of your board, it is essential that you first assess how it is performing.

Do you want to have effective board evaluation?

As leading contributors to the debate on effective governance, the Institute of Directors has detailed knowledge of best practice standards, codes of conduct and the techniques and processes associated with high performing boards.

What areas are evaluated?

The board performance evaluation service enables directors to understand how well the board is operating in a number of key areas. These include:

- Strategy
- Business Principles
- Risk Management and Internal Control
- Performance and Measurement
- Stakeholder Management
- Board Composition and Boardroom Practice
- Performance of Committees and Individual Director.
